...Summit held in New York in September 2000, the UN Secretary-General agreed to report annually to the General Assembly on the progress made towards achieving the millennium development goals (MDGs). Endorsed so far by 192 states of the world, MDGs are an ambitious agenda for reducing poverty, ending deprivations, and assuring citizens of their human rights. Eight MDGs have been specified (see Box 1), and for each goal one or more quantifiable targets (21 in all) and 60 indicators have been set, mostly for 2015, using 1990 as a benchmark. Effective partnerships...

...poverty for some, while generating wealth for others. Action to reduce poverty takes place at local, national, and international levels. Perhaps the most prominent example is the target of reducing the number of people living in extreme poverty between 1990 and 2015—a target that was adopted by the UN in 2000 as one of its eight Millennium Development Goals (MDGs). The World Bank calculated that this target (defined in relation to its own measure of absolute poverty) was met by 2010. In 2015 the UN adopted a new set of Sustainable Development...

...World Bank have invested heavily in measuring global poverty since the adoption of the Millennium Development Goals (MDG) by the world community. These goals are stated in the United Nations' Millennium Declaration which was adopted in 2000 by 189 nations. The first of the eight goals is to halve between 1990 and 2015 the proportion of people whose income is less than one dollar a day. International donor organizations across the world are investing large amounts of money to help developing countries meet this target, and monitoring poverty at global...
